course of four or five weeks
I shall go to bring her home.

We are all well - and Aunt Charlotte is all that such an unselfish, disinterested, devoted, energetic friend can be.

from it. I think I shall prosecute my original intention though I feel very much obliged to you for asking for the manuscript. If it can be published in the Tribune it will go immediately before 40,000 or 50,000 readers — and you I know will commend it to the readers of the Liberator — and I hope will copy it. —

Mr Webster's friends have created the necessity for us to expose his wiles. —

I shall send the manuscript to Greeley tomorrow. —

I thank you for your sympathy. Lucretia and I have suffered much. But I believe she is to be restored to me. — Every letter, her physician has written me,

My very Dear
Friend —

Yes — I have preached a long and faithful sermon on Daniel Webster — preached it here to a crowded house — and preached it at Canastota and at Auburn.

My audiences were evidently impressed by what I said, and believing that readers of the discourse might be, I am now preparing it for the press — by writing out as well as I can what I said ex tempore.

My intention was to send the manuscript first to the Tribune, because it will not copy from anti-slavery papers — and anti-slavery papers may copy
